Hello LOML,

seems like ages since I've e-mailed you....(it probably has been!) Am so happy that you are feeling better, and that things are working out with REDA. Have been feeling very badly at not being there to comfort you somehow.....but I hope you know my heart was with you at all times.

Have had an extremely trying week; 1st, that 3 day course with the "SQL leadership team", as they call themselves, which I thought went very well. (but which required me to arise at 5:30A each day- still feel as if I'm sleep deprived). Then a full schedule of meetings yesterday, from 8:30 straight thru till 4:30, then a million or so e-mails to look at, etc, etc. Today started well (thrashing Martin, which is always nice!) but was disconcerted again by the shrimp's forcing Chip on to this team. I probably should relax about it, as I don't believe Chip is the type to attempt to damage me professionally, and indeed, rarely speaks badly of anyone- in fact, goes out of his way (perhaps too much) not to hurt anyone's feelings....nonetheless, people will see us as equals on this team, which isn't the worst thing in the world, but seems odd after I was "picked" by the tightwad and the shrimp to be on that silly committee and represent the medical view.....Allright, enough whining about this!!

The snow is quite pretty here, but along with snow comes shoveling, etc. which all but ruins the beauty of it. Am off to a neighborhood party this evening- don't know this couple that well- but a few drinks will be very welcome tonite.

REDACTED your beautiful eyes, REDACTED ...this gap between visits seems enormous.....but our 1st embrace, our first kiss, REDACTED

all my love always,

xoxoxxxxooow
