

Hello, most gorgeous one of all,

Thought I 'd surprise you with a personal attachment.....seems like so long since we've spoken, although I know it hasn't .

Sorry to hear of your computer woes...I could tell you were quite stressed. I know how absolutely maddening that is, but its best just to move on if some data was lost. Would still pursue its retrieval, as I'm sure you are, so you may have a pleasant surprise in store.

There was a crisis here about our data (again!) Turns out the effect size on the MADRS in bipolar depression was calculated wrong, and needs to be changed in the manuscript that's in press at the Am J Psych...this is especially bad, as it's the 3rd time that statistic changed since study end, and the old effect size has been on numerous posters & abstracts...too long to get into, but its mostly worked out now.....will be meeting with REDACTED the APA on Saturday, trying to convince him we're not the fuck-ups we appear to be.....this, along with telling him his forensic study that we agreed to fund-well, we've changed our minds and will no longer be funding it.....won't blame him if he's furious at us...I hope alcohol will help soften the blow!

Went to a professional baseball game with the kids tonight (the Philadelphia Phillies, FYI). Beautiful night for the game; only problem, the kids could not have been less interested in the action on the field...all they wanted to do was to buy junk food, visit (& revisit) the souvenir stand, play in the playground there, etc. Had to sneak in the alcohol, as everyone is hypervigilant about booze since A's sister's death.....so a few times, I left the kids in their seats, went off to the loo, & on the way back got a beer (no liquor there, unfortunately), and guzzled it before returning to my seat.....after 3 such trips, I began to enjoy the evening much more!

Very busy day, REDACTED between telecons REDACTED

Lets hope for better luck tomorrow.....will ring at about 11:30- 45 your time, hope that's OK

All my love always,
