To Whom It May Concern:

Please find attached a report listing payments made in calendar year 2004 by AstraZeneca to practitioners within the state of Minnesota. AstraZeneca is providing information in this annual report based on the company's good faith interpretation of, and compliance with the Minnesota statutes, section 151.461 and 151.47(f). Although the Minnesota law states that the reports are "public data," AstraZeneca considers the information in this report to be confidential commercial information. AstraZeneca does not publicly release this information or the documents that were used to generate this report. Further, release of the information in this report, either individually or in aggregate, may harm AstraZeneca, giving AstraZeneca's competitors information that may give them a competitive advantage and undermining the company's relationship with contractors and consultants.

This report reflects certain payments made by AstraZeneca to practitioners in Minnesota. AstraZeneca occasionally makes payments to institutions and business entities which, in turn, may make payments to Minnesota practitioners. For example, AstraZeneca has arrangements with universities and other business entities to conduct research or provide services under which payments may be made by the entity to Minnesota practitioners. The company also has arrangements with sponsors of independent education activities. In these cases, the independent education provider may make payment to the practitioner who serves in a faculty capacity. As the independent education providers act outside the control or influence of AstraZeneca, any payments by these providers to practitioners are not listed in this report.

If you have any questions regarding the information submitted, I can be reached at the number above.

Regards,

Stephen F. Mohr
